Guest Editor

Doctor G. P. Nagaraju is a faculty member in the Department of Hematology and Medical Oncology at the Emory University School of Medicine. Doctor Nagaraju obtained his MSc and PhD, both in biotechnology, from Sri Venkateswara University in Tirupati, Andhra Pradesh, India, and his DSc from Berhampur University in Berhampur, Odisha, India. On the basis of his translational research in gastrointestinal malignancies, Doctor Nagaraju has published more than 100 research and review articles in highly refereed international journals, and has presented more than 50 abstracts at various national and international conferences. He is also the author and editor of several books and serves on the editorial board of several internationally recognized academic journals. Dr. Nagaraju is an associate member of the Discovery and Developmental Therapeutics research program at the Winship Cancer Institute. He is also a member of the Association of Scientists of Indian Origin in America (ASIOA), the Society for Integrative and Comparative Biology (SICB), the Science Advisory Board, the RNA Society, and the American Association of Cancer Research (AACR).